Three Capes Track project: construction and current operation presented by Sam Lennox

Stunning landscapes and some of the world's highest sea cliffs are encountered on one of the largest nature tourism projects undertaken in Australia, the Three Capes Track, on the Tasman Peninsula. Commencing in 2012, and with most of the physical labour undertaken by hand, the 48km track was officially opened in late 2015. Tasmanian Parks and Wildlife Ranger, Sam Lennox, will detail aspects of the project delivery, covering the planning and approval phase, construction and current operations.

Currently a Ranger at the Tasman Field Centre, Sam Lennox worked as track construction supervisor on the Three Capes Track Project.
